Bureau Veritas Announces Opening of Food Safety and Quality Testing Laboratory in the United States

NEW YORK, N.Y. (May 2, 2022) — Bureau Veritas, a world leader in testing, inspection and certification (TIC) services, today announced the opening of its third US microbiology laboratory located in Reno, Nevada. The new laboratory offers rapid pathogen testing as well as microbiology indicator analyses to ensure the safety of food and agriculture commodities.

The facility is an ISO 17025 accredited laboratory, ensuring the laboratory is technically proficient and that the data it produces is both accurate and precise. Bureau Veritas’ Reno laboratory is a part of its broader network of agri-food accredited microbiology and chemistry laboratories in North America. These laboratory activities support the agri-food market in combination with other services such as agriculture commodities inspection, grading and testing, as well as its suite of GFSI certification and training services.

“Our newest food laboratory in Reno, Nevada continues our expansion in the US and supports our commitment to servicing our customers consistently across North America,” said Waylon Sharp, Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, Food and Agri North America, Bureau Veritas. “We remain committed to expanding our geographic scope and offering unique services to the agri-food market to support their demand for reliable food product verification”.

Whether customers are involved in catering, hospitality, retail, manufacturing, processing, or producing—Bureau Veritas’ testing and certification services support regulatory compliance, safety, and quality across the full food chain, shaping a world of trust for communities.
